

HR Services

Most organisations and human resource practitioners today are very busy dealing with issues relating to performance. Whether it is a non performing team or an individual we are all ultimately managing our businesses to provide a maximum return to meet the expectations of both stakeholders and shareholders.

In such a busy and frantic business environment it is sometimes more beneficial to bring in experts to provide unbiased and technical expertise. Career Express specialised in the measurement of "organisational culture" and uses the tools of emotional intelligence to determine what is working well and why and how to increase and measure the performance of under performing teams and individuals. We have expertise in team building workshops and have developed competencies for high performing teams.

Our consultants are skilled in a number of tools including change management, facilitation, psychological assessments, coaching and leadership development techniques.

We provide realistic recommendations and are also able to assist with the implementation. Unlike a number of existing consultancies, we will advise our clients if the requirement is not within our realm of expertise and provide suggestions on where they need to source suitable options.
